Agronomy for Sustainable Development

Official journal of the Institut National de la Recherche Agronomique (INRA)

Agronomy for Sustainable Development (ASD) is an international peer-reviewed scientific journal which publishes original experimental, empirical and theoretical research articles, review articles and meta-analyses leading to enhanced sustainability for agricultural and food systems. The journal's objective is to interface agronomy, cropping and farming system researches with ecological, genetic, environmental, economic or social sciences. ASD promotes agroecology studies, participatory research and interdisciplinary approaches. It seeks to publish articles focusing on systems approaches, applied at field, farm, landscape, food systems and global levels.
