Groome / Dyszlewski

Antiracist Teaching and Learning

Antiracist Teaching and Learning equips legal educators to confront structural racism through intentional, practice-ready pedagogy. Developed in collaboration with the Antiracist Development Institute at Penn State Dickinson Law, this timely guide challenges faculty to recognize how legal education can either reinforce or disrupt systemic inequities.Organized into four parts, the book first establishes core platform methodologies for change, including the systems design approach to teaching, critical pedagogy, and reimagined classroom hierarchies. It then offers concrete tools for solo-educator and clinical courses as well as multi-instructor ones, from reflective practice and racial identity development models to critical research instruction and foundational curriculum reform. The final section addresses outcomes, feedback, and how to sustain antiracist commitments in the face of resistance.Accessible and action-oriented, this resource empowers educators to redesign learning outcomes, reshape classroom culture, and take on the important responsibility of preparing future lawyers to dismantle injustice within the legal system.

Antiracist Teaching and Learning equips legal educators to confront structural racism through intentional, practice-ready pedagogy. Developed in collaboration with the Antiracist Development Institute at Penn State Dickinson Law, this timely guide challenges faculty to recognize how legal education can either reinforce or disrupt systemic inequities.Organized into four parts, the book first establishes core platform methodologies for change, including the systems design approach to teaching, critical pedagogy, and reimagined classroom hierarchies. It then offers concrete tools for solo-educator and clinical courses as well as multi-instructor ones, from reflective practice and racial identity development models to critical research instruction and foundational curriculum reform. The final section addresses outcomes, feedback, and how to sustain antiracist commitments in the face of resistance.Accessible and action-oriented, this resource empowers educators to redesign learning outcomes, reshape classroom culture, and take on the important responsibility of preparing future lawyers to dismantle injustice within the legal system.

102,50 €
102,50 € (zzgl. MwSt.)

vorbestellbar, Erscheinungstermin ca. Januar 2027

Artikelnummer: 9780520417618
Medium: Buch
ISBN: 978-0-520-41761-8
Verlag: University of California Press
Erscheinungstermin: 05.01.2027
Sprache(n): Englisch
Auflage: 1. Auflage 2027
Serie: Building an Antiracist Law School, Legal Academy, and Legal Profession
Produktform: Gebunden
Seiten: 296
Format (B x H): 140 x 216 mm

Kundenservice Verlag Dr. Otto Schmidt KG
Neumannstraße 10, 40235 Düsseldorf | kundenservice@otto-schmidt.de | 0221-93738-997 (Inland)