

Ricoeur

From Text to Action

Will be useful to those coming to the field of hermeneutics for the first time, as well as those already familiar with Ricoeur's work.

Paul Ricoeur (1913-2005) was Professor of Philosophy at the University of Chicago and the University of Paris X, Nanterre, and a leading figure in twentieth-century French philosophy. provides an invaluable companion to Ricoeur's classic text, . Here he further develops his general theory of interpretation in relation to his own philosophical background and influences: Hegel, Husserl, Gadamer and Weber. This is a hugely important work from a key figure in contemporary philosophy that will be of interest to those starting out in the field of hermeneutics, as well as those already familiar with Ricoeur's work.
