Chinese Economic Planning

Translations From Chi-Hua Ching-Chi

This title was first published in 1978. This volume brings together translations of a series of fundamental articles that are of special value for those who seek to understand China's system of economic planning. These materials, which were intended to provide a basic introduction to the principles and techniques of economic planning being introduced during the First Five-Year Plan, originally appeared in two series in the journal Chi-hua ching-chi (Economic Planning), the official organ of the State Planning Commission and the State Economic Commission.

This volume brings together translations of a series of fundamental articles that are of special value for those who seek to understand China's system of economic planning.
