

Municipal Finance Journal

Municipal Finance Journal covers the full range of issues facing professionals who work in state and local finance and tax-exempt financing. In each quarterly issue, leading practitioners and researchers address the complicated interplay of legal, market, economic and political perspectives that affect public finance. MFJ brings you in-depth coverage of financing strategies for statutory authorities, health care institutions, private universities and other tax-exempt issuers and the latest research on contemporary municipal, county and state fiscal issues and the acquisition, allocation and management of financial resources in a competitive capital marketplace. Each quarterly issue shares the experience of the nation's leading experts in the field, covering all the critical issues you face in your day-to-day work: • Issuance strategies • Trends in the capital markets • Innovative approaches to capital financing • Accounting developments and standards • Tax law requirements • Alternatives for raising funds in a financial downturn • Factors affecting bond ratings • New infrastructure initiatives • Analysis of market segments • Fiscal accountability and disclosure requirements • Cybersecurity risks and opportunities • Financing climate resilience
