

Andrology serves to increase the visibility, impact and prominence of the field of andrology. We deal with basic and clinical aspects of the male reproductive system (gonads, endocrine and accessory organs) in all species, including the diagnosis and treatment of medical problems associated with sexual development, infertility, sexual dysfunction, sex hormone action and other urological problems. We are pleased to announce that the 2023 Impact Factor for Andrology is 3.2. Once again, Andrology is in the top quartile of the Andrology subject category! Thank you to all our contributors, Editors, and reviewers for making this happen.
